

Privacy is your business!

Several months ago, there was a live show at APM. The show was performed by four foreigners. During the show, they stayed in a 'house' which was made of glass and everybody who passed by could know what they were doing by simply take a look into the house. Their only private time was when they were in washroom.

Has anyone ever thought about what it would be to live like the performers mentioned above? It must be a hard life as we lose our privacy in the case. In my opinion, privacy is a interesting thing. You will not have any special feeling when you get it in hands, but once you lose it, you will feel uncomfortable. This is because if everything about you are disclosed, you will find yourself a naked person who cannot keep any secrets to yourself.

Moreover, there are so many examples to show that privacy is essential even in the closet relationship. As an illustration, most of you will not let your mother know that you are dating someone when you are still a student, right? Or , if your lover forces you to let him/her check your dialing record or emails, you will be angry. I believe privacy is one of the most important things to maintain a relationship indeed. In fact, no matter how close you are, you must have something that you are not willing to share with him/her.

Perhaps somebody may argue that we should be honest and faithful towards who we love and thus we should not hide anything from them. However, I don't agree. I do think nobody will say that " I am perfect!". For instance, you may be the best in studies but very weak in sports. Or, she may have a pretty young face but actually she is the oldest woman among her colleagues. Owing to all kinds of reasons, people want to keep some secrets to protect themselves. This is nothing related to honesty. In fact, it is our freedom to choose whether we should keep that thing confidential or not.

Furthermore, such freedom is the key to maintain any healthy relationships. We should give privacy and freedom to those we love and care about to show out respect and trust. It is easy to understand indeed. When you trust a person, it is not necessary for you to ask so many things. Even if you are really curious about his/her secrets, you should still keep silent to show your respect, Only if we do so can we get along with the others well.

To sum up, it is really important to have privacy and also not to invade others' privacy. This is because it is one of the most vital elements to maintain a relationship. It is not related to honesty but instead, the presence of privacy is to show our respect and trust towards those we do love and clear about.

Author: Cheng Ka Man